Students gather at College Coffee to chat with friends and professors as well as have a snack. College Coffee is a well kept tradition.

The Organization Fair is the first event to take place under the oaks. Students can find lots of organizations to be involved in but they must be careful not to take on too much. Photo by Katisha Hayes

Under the oak trees is a great place to relax before class. The steps to Sloan residence hall provide the perfect shade. Photo by Emily MacDonnell

Before and after class the walkways are filled with students going in their respective directions. This is the perfect time to catch up with friends and classmates. Photo by Sharon Yow

Under
where it all from the
the year the Oaks is begins.

beginning of
during the Organization Fair to the end with graduation, we are reminded of the famous oak trees. Elon's signature oak trees represent strength, endurance, tradition and wisdom.

As seasons change, these trees withstand the elements through fall, winter, spring and summer. If only those trees could talk to share with us the tradition and history that has made Elon what it is.

Whether they serve as a shady spot during the spring and summer, a quiet place to relax and unwind, or a scene for a movie, under the oaks is where it all happens.

Under the Oaks with Student Life...
A variety of campus activities and events, students are kept up-to-date with issues on and off campus.

Walking to class, eating in the dining halls, chatting at the coffee shop or working out in the fitness room gives you the chance to meet someone new. On any given day you can be part of the activities of Student Life where you can make new friends and experience new things.

Sororities gather for the Under the Oaks informal rush. This was the first chance for girls to check out what Greek life is all about. Photo by Emily MacDonnell

Talking with friends between classes, Sean Barry and Lorraine Russell, enjoy the sunny warm weather and discuss possible plans for the weekend. Photo by Heather Hulick

Welcome Freshmen

Buying books is an essential at Elon. Sophomore, Akilah Weaver looks calm, cool and collected as she takes on the swarm of students buying books and school supplies.

One of the main characteristics of orientation leaders is high energy. "Energy checks" are a common occurrence throughout Orientation Week. OLs came to Elon a week before the class of 2001 arrived to get pumped.

Orientation leader Steve Davis helps a new student build a loft. Students who purchase lofts are greeted by a pile of lumber when they enter their new room.

President Young tells a joke as part of his annual convocation speech at the Koury Center. Freshmen Convocation is the president's first opportunity to officially welcome new students.

Celebrating the return of their alumni brothers, Tom Peterson and Mike Garcia of AKA fraternity discuss their post-game plans.

Shaun Fitzpatrick, a member of the rugby team, stands on top of a teammate's truck orchestrating his fellow teammates in traditional Rugby songs.

The ladies of ΣΣΣ take time out to socialize during the tailgating festivities before the Homecoming game.

Living

Mardi Gras

Eric Loftus takes a break after the Homecoming parade but still claims to have the best seat in the house. All photos by Carrie Martens and Brandee Dunavant

The men of the Kappa Alpha Order enjoy a pre-game snack. Both Greek and non-Greek organizations participate in tailgating.

A Little

Competition

The sisters of AOPI celebrate their overall victory of Homecoming week. Winners of Homecoming are announced at the end of the football game. Photo by Kathryn Guest

"Looking back on the memories of Mardi Gras" was the theme of ZTA's skit. ZTA won first place along with ZΦB. Photo by Heather Gosnell

The children of Elon participate in the luminary celebration. Elon's campus becomes a winter wonderland as everyone participates in various holiday traditions. Photo by Angela Adkins

So Many Memories...

College Coffee is an opportunity for students to talk with faculty outside of class. Everyone joins around Fonville Fountain on Wednesday mornings for breakfast before classes begin. Photo by Felicia Massey

A family weekend brunch was enjoyable for all who attended. It was a wonderful time for parents, students, and faculty to come together at President Young's house. Photo by Richard Kendall

So Many Traditions

Between 9:20 and 9:50 on Wednesday mornings, most students are still asleep. However, many enjoy rising early for College Coffee. Photo by Felicia Massey

Let's Get Physical

The free weight room is a great way to maintain muscle tone and strength. From bicep curls to dead lifts, Tom Harvey works on his upper body as do many other students on campus. Photo by Heather Hulick

An activity that many students enjoy is aerobics. Campus Rec. also has a strong staff of students who lead every class with enthusiasm. Courtesy of Campus Recreation

Familiar Places

The gameroom in the Moseley Center offers a variety of activities ranging from pool to pinball to Pac-Man. Stephen Bloodworth, Kelly Forrest and Kenneth Brown play a friendly game of pool.

The College Coffee Shop stays open late for those craving a midnight snack and needing a study break. These students look at the number of choices and try to decide among the coffee, food and beverages.

Wal-Mart - the store students can't live without. For last minute and late night shopping students can never be bored with Wal-Mart just around the corner.

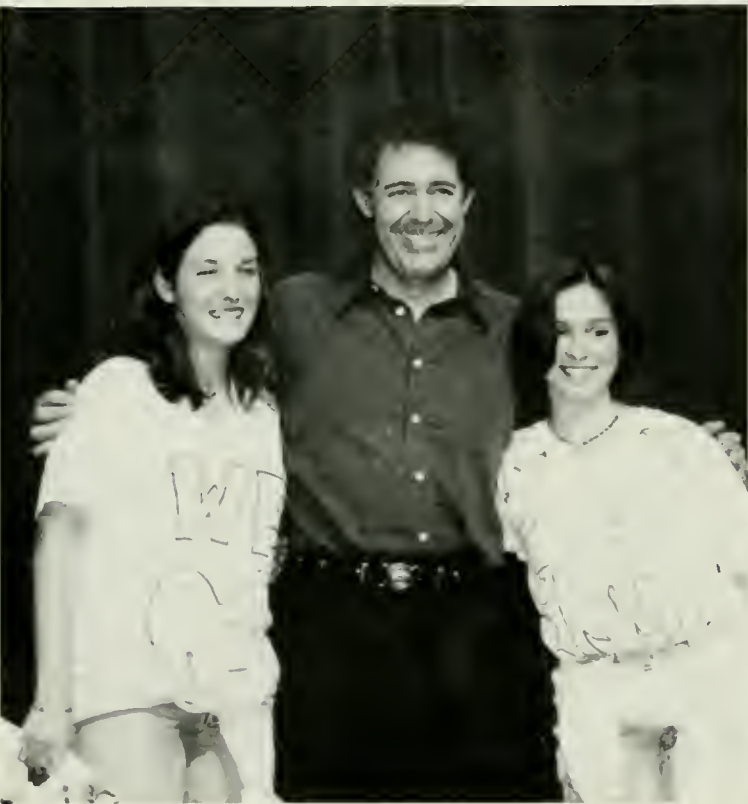

Started by two Elon students, West End has become a popular hangout that provides live bands, pool tables and social atmosphere for the town as well as the campus.

Familiar

Faces

Spike Lee came to campus to use the Octagon Cafe as well as many other areas for shooting the movie He Got Game. Students helped create the scene for the movie's Tech University. Photo by Richard Kendall

Coolio performed in concert in the Alumni Gym thanks to the work of the Student Union Board. S.U.B. helped with stage setup and received autographed memorabilia. Photo by Marianne Smith

Under the Oaks with People... new faces are all around. Unknowing future husbands, wives, best friends and lovers pass you by.

How you meet your new best friend is unpredictable. Maybe it will be your roommate, someone in your most difficult class or someone you bumped into at College Coffee. No matter who you meet and how, these are the people you remember for a lifetime.

People

Everyone gathers at the first weekly College Coffee, that is if you can wake up before 9:20 a.m. on Wednesday. Photo by Felicia Massey

Student support adds so much to the spirit of Homecoming. Blair Willacker has the spirit for the football game. Photo by Andrew Brickey

To relieve stress during exam week, Moseley Center offered massages, Twister, and karaoke. These students decided to sing their stress away. Photo by Michelle Gurney

Under the Oaks in Arts & Academics... are the future entertainers, teachers, scientists, journalists, accountants, and politicians. Your first impression is made in the classroom.

There are professors you love and of course some you endure, but every professor must make an impression in order to make you a success.

Under the Oaks in Sports... athletics was put in the spotlight with the changes from division II to division I. The success of our seasons prove that our athletes know first-hand what it takes to handle competition.

The world of sports is one in which everyone can be an active participant in Elon athletics whether you are a spectator, cheerleader or team member.

Go Orientation!

For 25 years Dr. Fred Young gazed through the oaks on Elon's campus while another vision became a reality. A native of Burnsville, NC, Young became the seventh president of Elon College on Oct. 17, 1973. Now, the 63-year-old has decided that the time is right for him to retire at the end of the year. At a special meeting with his senior staff, Young remarked that "the library is underway, the science building is finished, and if we can possibly do so, I anticipate the new stadium project will be funded, or nearly funded, by the end of the year." He added that in two or three years, Elon will be working on a new strategic plan for growth, so now is the time for a new president with new ideas to take his seat in Powell Building. Upon retiring, Young will have more time to spend with Elon's official hostess Phyllis, his wife, while remaining active professionally with a foundation and playing a little golf. Photo courtesy of College Relations

One of the 703 graduates, Chris Kiger, was able to keep his spirits high even after waiting an extra hour to graduate. Commencement was moved to the Alumni Gym for the first time in 41 years because of the rain. Photo courtesy of College Relations

Excitement fills the air for Christina Anthony and Justin Andrews as they see the diploma they had worked so hard toward. Justin received a degree in Sports Medicine and Christina is leaving with a degree in Business Administration. Photo courtesy of College Relations

Under the Oaks is where it all ends in May each year and a new life begins. Whether commencement is in front of West Hall or in Alumni Gym sheltered from the rain, graduates' spirits are not dampened. Oak trees will always be remembered as the symbol of Elon, for "Elon" is the Hebrew word for oak.

Just as oak trees withstand the weather, like unexpected rain, Elon students leave the year having endured unpredicted challenges and life experiences.

Elon brings something different to everyone, whether we are saying good-bye for the summer, getting ahead in summer classes or receiving our diplomas, Under the Oaks is where it all begins and ends.

...I will remember my years at Elon not as the best years of my life, but as the years that taught me to be open to what life offers because I know "the best is yet to be."

-Richard W. McBride
